

At some point the FCC is going to have to make a decision between flooding small market broadcasters with so much paper work or allow them to do the job they do best...serve their communities. I'm too the point right now where with the new EEO rules I'm burdened with so much paper work and bureaucracy that I don't have time to run or program my station. We have only 5 full-time people working at KOFO and we produce 19 local newscasts a day Monday-Friday. 12 local newscasts on Saturday. And 7 on Sunday. I have a live guest from the community on my morning show every weekday. We produce a 26 minute Sunday morning public affairs program. We do a live talk show, an hour long, once a month from a local nursing facility usually featuring two guest (one each half-hour). We produce a coaches show Every Wednesday night during football and basketball season featuring the coach of the local university and one area high school coach who can talk about their programs. We cover our local high school in football and basketball. We follow whatever area team makes it to the playoffs. We broadcast American Legion Baseball in the summer. We feature local recording artists on the air. We have a talk show program every Friday for 20 minutes. Don't tell me about local programming. I wrote the stinkin' book. You make me document all that in some stupid report to satisfy some stuffed shirt politician and I guarantee you I will start doing less. If that's what you want go ahead. If you really want to help give me more night time power. I can barely cover my county of license on my night power. I've receive two complaints from people trying to hear my station at night but can't pick it up. But it come in great during the day. You want to help. Fix that.
